

Mauro Ferrante is Assistant Professor in Social Statistics at the University of Palermo. He is Contract Professor of Social Statistics and of Research Methods in Tourism Research at the University of Palermo. He holds a B.A. in Economics at the University of Palermo. He was Visiting Researcher at the Regional Economic Application Laboratory (REAL) at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (IL-USA), and Ph.D. in Tourism Sciences at the University of Palermo. His research interest are related with quantitative methods for tourism sciences. In particular, he published on topics related with tourism application of GIS and of GPS tracking data, methods for the analysis of unobserved tourism, seasonality in tourism and sampling in tourism.